EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

Sexual Medicine counseling is a state of the art training program devoted to sexual health, utilizing medical expertise in conjunction with the principles and practices of sex therapy. It is comprehensive and helpful, both for those in the medical field, who will learn insightful limited interventions as well as psycho-therapists discussing organic and medical issues during sex therapy clinical sessions. All health care professionals including physicians, nurses, nurse practitioners, therapists and counselors will benefit from this innovative program.

This is one of two courses in leading towards certification from the Florida Board of Health. Additionally, all CE credits are approved by the American Association of Sexuality Educators, Counselors and Therapists (AASECT).

The participant will receive a strong fundamental background in the psychological aspects of sex therapy combined with the foundations of biological and physiological aspects of sexual medicine. In depth discussion will reiterate the biological, physiological, hormonal, relational, psychological and social basis of sexual function and dysfunction. The program directors will present an integrated treatment approach to the fundamentals of male and female sexual dysfunction, incorporating the principle facets of medical and psychological treatment paradigms.

It is strongly recommended that the participant consult with the AASECT website to review the criteria for certification as an AASECT Sex Therapist or Sexual Counselor.

Completion of this course does not guarantee certification or approval by AASECT. There is a home study element to this course and pre reads will be provided and must be completed prior to the course.
